brothers at One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Third avenue, he failed to take note of the passing automobile.

Near One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Third avenue a policeman was seen on patrol. No other policeman was seen through One Hundred and Twentieth street and up Second avenue to One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street and across One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street to Fifth avenue. The man on post at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Madison avenue was standing still on the corner.

street and Fifth avenue. Here was one standing before a saloon in earnest conversation with two friends. He was laughing boisterously over some matter made up of them.

The block further on, at Fifty-sixth street, another policeman was seen. He was patrolling.

The route was now toward Eighth avenue and north across the circle. Here policeman was seen patrolling. As the auto turned up Central Park West one group of young men loitering about the side door of a saloon, supposed to Patrol duty was taking up the time of the policeman on the beat in First avenue, between One Hundred and Eighteenth and One Hundred and Seventeenth streets. At One Hundred and Eight street and First avenue, on the eastern fringe of the city, a crowd of men were arguing in front of a saloon. A policeman came around the corner and butted into the argument. Apparently to settle it, for in a moment he started up the avenue and the men dispersed. A policeman was seen on that corner by The Evening World investigators on Sunday morning between 2 and 2 o'clock.

From a distance a policeman was seen patrolling in Ninety-sixth street, just off Third avenue. At Ninety-first street and Madison avenue a policeman was talking to a citizen. There was a man on patrol at Eighty-fourth street and Fifth avenue. Seventy-second street and Second avenue, and Seventieth street and Third avenue.

POLICE IN CRIME CENTRE TO-DAY.

World told of the lonesome and crook-inhaling character of the section east of First avenue, between Sixty-sixth and Sixty-first streets.

This is the Flower Hospital neighborhood, and at 3 o'clock in the morning it is about as deserted a part of the city as can be found, considering that it is within a few blocks of a teeming center of tenement population. Thieves might decoy their victim to the lonesome stretches of vacant lots thereabouts and work at their leisure unless there should be police interference.

The Evening World called attention to the fact that on two nights in succession no policeman could be found in this vicinity. Lo and behold, last night there were three.

It was close onto 1 o'clock when the automobile rattled down First avenue and

It was 1:30 A. M. when the auto reached the corner of Ninety-fourth street and Columbus avenue. A policeman had arrived there at that moment and was shaking the hands of three men. The patrol stopped right there and then.

The next policeman seen was at Ninety-ninth street and Central Park West. He was leaning against a railing gazing into the sky and studying weather conditions. The auto kept right on and turned east through One Hundred and Eleventh street to Seventh avenue.

"FEW AND FAR BETWEEN."

At One Hundred and Twelfth street a policeman was made out standing ward Sixty-seventh street. A policeman was seen patrolling up the east side of the avenue, preceded by a playful dog. A block below, on the opposite side of the street, a policeman was seen patrolling southward.

The third policeman was found at Sixty-second street, and Avenue A, walking to the north. He was patrolling with due regard to the rules.

The observers noted a policeman on patrol at Fifty-seventh street and Second avenue. At Fifty-ninth street and Second avenue another policeman was leaning against a corner of a building. A roundsman was noted on patrol in Third avenue, between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets.

All the way from Fifty-ninth street down to Forty-second street, between the New York Central tracks and Fifth avenue, but one policeman was found. He was patrolling at Forty-ninth street and Madison avenue. There were no policemen in Forty-second street, between Fifth avenue and Third avenue, at 2:15 o'clock, although a policeman was standing at the corner of Forty-third street and Third avenue. Another policeman was found at Fifty-first street and Lexington avenue, and still another at Third avenue and Fifty-fourth street.

his case. The auto proceeded up Seventh avenue to One Hundred and Fourteenth street and then east to Lenox. It turned up Lenox avenue and at One Hundred and Sixtieth street another policeman was passed. He was in conversation with a man. Nine blocks further north, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street another policeman was seen, and a half block west, on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, was still another. Both were walking.

On the return trip, which was started from the Harlem office at 2 o'clock A. M., the auto was sent west to Eighth avenue and south.

For the first thirteen blocks not a policeman was encountered. At One Hundred and Twelfth street one suddenly appeared. He was promptly recorded as the auto sped along two blocks further south and then turned west to Riverside Drive. Here it turned north past Grant's Tomb and across the big viaduct that spans the valley at Manhattanville. The viaduct was dark and not a policeman was found in its entire length. Around at the north end and down again the automobile was directed. Just below Grant's Tomb on the west side of the drive was seen a policeman. He looked sleepy. He was alone.

Down the Drive to One Hundred and Sixth street, where a disabled Panha

UPPER WEST SIDE SEES MORE MEN OUT ON POST

The Evening World's automobile, touring the west side of Manhattan, discovered improved police conditions this morning. Although covering approximately the same territory as that traversed on Sunday and Monday mornings, when only a handful of men were found on post, the auto to-day located thirty-two patrolmen and one sergeant doing duty, and the majority of those were patrolling.

The automobile left the Broadway office of The World at 12:30 A. M. It was ceded down Broadway, and in front of the Herald Square Theatre, at Thirty-fifth street, the first policeman was seen. He was not patrolling, but he was not in conversation with any of the crowd that stood about. The auto turned west on Thirty-fourth street, and near the corner of Eighth avenue the second policeman was picked up. He was patrolling, as was also the man at Thirty-sixth street and Tenth avenue.

As the auto passed him he saluted the chauffeur with his baton and called out, "Hello, Rumsfeld!"

Three policemen had been found up to this time, and the auto had not gone

The auto passed up Ninth avenue and at Forty-fourth street still another Policeman was seen. He, too, was trucking up the avenue. Turning into Forty-eighth street, toward Eighth avenue, the auto came upon Policeman No. 7. He was standing right in front of it. Heerted. Here and there were persons wandering aimlessly about. The next policeman met with was standing in a dark door-

Leaving him behind, the auto proceeded up Eighth avenue to Fifty-fifth street and turned west to Ninth avenue.

MINISTER'S SON IN POLICE COURT

Boy Whose Father Is Believed to Be Christian Science Leader Captured Attempting to Break Into Brooklyn House.

Forrest Simonson, seventeen years old, believed to be the son of the Rev. Severin Simonson, a Christian Scientist minister, of New Haven, was arrested to-day in Brooklyn on the charge of attempted burglary. It is alleged that he was discovered trying to enter the home of Edward J. McCormick, of No. 29, Clermont avenue.

He was afterward arraigned and held in $200 for examination on Monday. The charge of attempted burglary was changed to vagrancy when he appeared in court.

When captured Simonson was in the company of another boy, who is about twelve years old, and is thought to be the second son of the minister. The latter got away, however, and is still at large.

Thomas Place, who lives next door to Mr. McCormick, was disturbed early to-day by the noise of a burglar.

day by a noise in the rear of his house. Leaving his bed he saw two boys trying to get in the McCormick home. It aroused Mr. McCormick, who took the elder boy into the house and questioned him. Simonson told varying tales, but the police believe that the one in which he said he was the son of the Christian Scientist minister is correct.

along with his father and for that reason left home three weeks ago. He wandered around from place to place living on what little money he brought with him. When found he had a pound of sliced ham rolled up in a paper and some notes written to grocers asking for food. The police found a cooking outfit belonging to the young man and say that he and his brother were trans-

After being questioned pretty closely by Mr. McCormick, the police were called in and the boy was arrested. He said that he thought the house was an empty one and that he and his brother were trying to effect an entrance in order to find a place to sleep. They said that it was too late to go home and it was getting cold on the grass where they had spent the early hours of the morning after leaving a Brookline man's house.

The Rev. Simonson created a sensation in Brooklyn a few years ago when, as pastor of Betheship Norwegian and Danish Methodist Episcopal Church, he renounced Methodism and went to New Haven to enter the ranks of the Christian Scientists, later becoming the leader of a flock.

THE DOCTOR'S WIFE Agrees with Him About Food.

A trained nurse says: "In the past,

"It is delicate and pleasing to the palate (an essential in food for the sick) and can be adapted to all ages—being softened with milk or cream for babies or the aged when deficiency of teeth renders mastication impossible. For fever patients or those of liquid diet I find 'Grape-Nuts' an albumen water very nourishing and refreshing.' This recipe is my own idea and is made as follows: Soak a teaspoonful of Grape-Nuts in a glass of water for an hour, strain and serve with the beaten white of an egg and a spoonful of fruit juice for flavoring. This affords a great deal of nourishment that even the weakest stomach can assimilate without any distress.

"My husband is a physician and has used Grape-Nuts himself and ordered it many times for his patients. "Personally I regard a dish of Grape-Nuts with fresh or stewed fruit as the ideal breakfast for an one—well or sick." Name given by Dr. J. C. B. Smith, Seattle, Wash.

In any case of stomach trouble, nervous prostration or brain fag, 10 days' trial of Grape-Nuts will work wonders toward nourishing and rebuilding, and in this way ending the trouble. "There's a reason" and trial proves.

WALDORF BELLBOY PLEADS GUILTY

James Reilly Indicted for Stealing Diamond Studs Valued at $500 from C. A. Henderson—Will Be Sentenced Friday.

James Reilly, the bellboy of the Wagonmaster Hotel, who was arrested yesterday and taken back to city for the thefts committed as he led the party to the hotel, was found guilty to petty larceny to-day when arraigned before Recorder Goff in General Sessions.

Reilly was indicted for grand larceny and having stolen two diamond studs valued at $500 from the apartments occupied by Charles A. Henderson. On the charge of grand larceny, Henderson's Attorney Dan Ryan Goff took a plea of petty larceny. The prisoner was held for trial on Friday for sentence. He got one year in the penitentiary.

It has been alleged that within the last few days the Wagonmaster Hotel-Wagonmaster Hotel has lost more than $200,000 of valuables through the thefts of a party of four, who were led by Prince Poniatowski, son-in-law of George Focker, the principal owner of the hotel. The principal owner, however, valued at $15,000 being stolen
